Subject: RE: Confidential - Injunction & Preparations re: Blockade

There is no funding we are aware of that is linked to protest response.

At this point there are few advantages or disadvantages in a declaration. Declaration would give us some relief under the purchasing by-law and make it a little easier to request provincial resources, however; we already have additional policing resources. We would have to exhaust other municipal resources locally, before we request more. There is no indication at this time that would occur or is needed.

As for towing , police have a contract with AM-PM towing.

As much as the injunction may cause a reaction by the protesters we need to make sure we coordinate everything with WPS.

I have talked to WPS , they will advise if anything arises. We will continue to monitor as well

In the event we need to convene and open the EOC you will receive direction via Everbridge. Please look at the message and note the location. Bring your City ID and laptop.

Subject: Confidential - Injunction & Preparations re: Blockade

CONFIDENTIAL

Good evening, CLT and Key Leaders.

The injunction has been granted – it comes into effect at 7 pm tonight (Friday). Details of the Court Order are still being worked out.

I know we all remain hopeful that the injunction and additional resources, support and legal measures being provided by the Province, will assist the Windsor Police Service in bringing the blockade at the Ambassador Bridge to a peaceful resolution asap.

But these advancements may have the effect of “ratcheting up” the protestors (and their supporters). We will be watching closely to see what developments happen over the next 24 hours. In the event that hundreds more pour into Windsor or the current protestors behaviour deteriorates, we may need to convene the EOC/CCG over the weekend.

Some considerations for discussion at some point:

- Do we declare an additional State of Emergency (advantages/disadvantages, e.g. access to funding)?
- Do we need additional staff (e.g. bylaw/parking ramp up outside of regular business hours)?
- Should we consider recommending to Council (temporary) increases in our set fines for certain bylaw violations?
- Do we have a towing contract with a company in the event of a “heavy” need of this service, with varying levels of weight capacity?
- Can we establish a process to bring transparency to key daily data/metrics should things ramp up (e.g. bylaw infractions, customer service complaints, etc.)?

I sincerely hope that you all get a restful weekend and that we’re preparing for the worst but the best happens.

Cheers,

Jason Reynar
